Sept 11 – Hoof Health in the Wild with Jamie Jackson

About Jamie Jackson:

Jamie Jackson is an internationally recognized expert in natural hoof care and the author of "The Natural Horse" and several other works on equine hoof health. With decades of experience in field research on wild horses, especially in the Great Basin, Jamie has made significant contributions to understanding how wild horse populations thrive in challenging environments. His groundbreaking research has led to new insights on hoof structure, health, and the benefits of barefoot trimming in both wild and domesticated horses.

In this exclusive webinar, Jamie will share the results of his groundbreaking research on wild horse populations in the Great Basin. Learn how these resilient horses naturally maintain strong, healthy hooves in one of the harshest environments on Earth. Whether you're a horse owner, hoof care professional, or simply fascinated by wild horses, this session is packed with practical takeaways for all.
